NEWS OF THE DAY.

—Gold closed in New York, yesterday, at 124 1/2.

—Cotton closed steady and firm, with light offerings; uplands 18 1/2 cents.

—In Liverpool cotton closed easier; uplands 9 1/2, Orleans 9 1/2.

—The latest report about the Prince of Wales is that he is a Ritualist.

—The Masonic Order has a total membership in the United States of 466,893.

—The maxim of the Hon. Rufus D. New York stock operator, is that "there are two hundred million of them in Wall Street, and all for sale," while that of Commodore Vanderbilt is, "Sonny, never sell what you haven't got."

—Some time since, a Savannah fire company visited Boston, where they were handsomely entertained by two of the principal companies. Since the return of the visitors, a regular fire of presents has been kept up on both sides. From the Savannah companies, those in Boston have recently received a consignment of valuable moccasins, turtles, coons, and other productions indigenous to the South, which, it is needless to say, were fully appreciated.

In return, one of the Boston companies is about to send a consignment of Maltese cats, nine in number, with a promise of others yet to come.

—The chronophore is the name of the instrument which supplies all England with the correct time. It is in direct communication with the Greenwich Observatory, and with sixteen of the principal cities of the kingdom, and precisely at 10 o'clock A. M. the hour is flashed, not only to those stations, but to every post-office in the country, so that all time is regulated to the twentieth part of a second. Time-guns are fired every day at 1 P. M. at Newcastle and Shields, by batteries connected with the chronophore, and all the prominent watch-makers in London receive the exact second every hour from the same instrument. Under such strict regulations the uniformity of time all over the kingdom is as nearly perfect as it can be made.

—There are physicians who contend that there is no well authenticated case of hydrophobia affecting human beings; that it is all the work of the imagination, acted on by the fears of the person bitten by a mad dog, or one supposed to be mad. How do these gentlemen account for the death of a child twenty-one months old in Chicago on the 5th instant, which, about four weeks previously, had been bitten by a rabid dog? The doctor in attendance reports that the child manifested every symptom of rabies, refusing water and all nourishment; seemed endowed with supernatural strength, and showed all the canine tendencies to bite its attendants; and that it died in agony on the fourth day from the attack. There was no imagination in that case, certainly. Better that every worthless cur in the land—muzzled or unmuzzled—should perish suddenly than that one human being should suffer such tortures as the victims of hydrophobia undergo.

—A curious condition of impecuniosity has overtaken the Chinese Embassy in Paris. These Orientals were originally sent to France about the time of the outbreak of the European war, to offer the apologies of the Emperor of China for the massacre of French subjects by the Tien-tsin mob. They found, upon their arrival, that the Emperor Napoleon had gone a soldiering. But the Emperor never came back, and while waiting for some opportunity to present their message to somebody authorized to receive it, the Government of France took so many shapes as to perplex and confound the envoys. With the accession of M. Thiers to power, the Embassy was attempted to make the proper explanation to him. M. Thiers, however, refuses to receive the apologies which were intended for the ex-Emperor, and the envoys have been compelled to send to China for a fresh set of excuses, suitable to the changed political aspect of French affairs. But it seems that, en attendant, the envoys, whose money has given out with the long delay, are suffering the pangs of poverty, and have, it is whispered in diplomatic circles, nearly exhausted their wardrobe of silks and satins in surreptitious visits to the national pawnbrokerage establishment of the Mont de Piete, in a heroic resolve to keep up appearances.

—It is not often that a millionaire makes a compulsory visit to a jail, and when he does it is sufficient to command general attention and draw together a great crowd to witness the strange spectacle. On Thursday the stern decrees of the New York coroner were fulfilled, and the president, superintendent and engineer of the Staten Island Ferry Company were led to the Tombs. Mr. Vanderbilt, the venerable president, as he walked by the police captain, wore a serious expression of countenance, and staggered along with unsteady strides in his endeavor to keep up with the younger and trickier officer. Mr. Braisted, the superintendent, was inclined to be tactful, and listened reflectively to the conversation of the others, putting in an occasional grin by way of comment. He was shabbily dressed, and expended all his energies, apparently, on whittling a pipe stick which he carried under his left arm. The negro engineer, Robinson, was the most agitated of the party. He slid along in a shame-faced manner, and slunk into the darkest corner as soon as the coroner's office was reached. Here an ineffectual effort was made to procure bail, and the queer trio were marched off to the Tombs, where they entered with woe-begone countenances—Robinson gloomily, Vanderbilt tremblingly, and Braisted still whittling his stick. Three hours elapsed, and then the prisoners found bail and liberty.

The South Carolina Railroad—Good News from England.

We are authorized to say that W. J. Magrath, Esq., the President of the South Carolina Railroad Company, has completed, in London, the exchange of the new First Mortgage bonds of the Company, for the over-due Sterling bonds, endorsed by the State. Mr. Magrath sailed from Liverpool for New York, in the Java, on Saturday last, and brings with him the old Sterling bonds which were held in England.

This news will be received with satisfaction by the friends of the South Carolina Railroad Company. The bonded debt of the road is now in manageable shape, and while the bondholders have a better investment in the amply secured First Mortgage bonds, the Company is the gainer in being relieved from the contingent danger of legislative interference or State supervision. This fact should enhance the market price, or, as it unquestionably does the real value, of the stock of the Company.

The negotiation with the English Sterling bondholders was both delicate and difficult. That President Magrath should have closed the transaction so thoroughly, and so quickly, is another justification of the confidence reposed in him, for so many years, by the stockholders of his road.

Gloomy Crop Accounts.

Very gloomy crop reports reach Charleston from the whole South, and it would seem that the sections of country which escaped the floods and high winds, of Friday and Saturday, are suffering severely from the long-continuing drought.

Above Columbia, in this State, the rains were light. Corn has been terribly injured, and a half crop of cotton is the best that can be expected. Similar accounts are given by gentlemen who have recently passed through the Georgia cotton region. The staple there is said to be parched up by the dry heat.

Upon the crop of long cotton the effect of the gales is extremely disastrous. A plantation on John's Island, which had the finest cotton in the neighborhood, was entirely submerged on Sunday. This crop is lost. Nor are the accounts from Edisto more encouraging. The crop was the finest since the war, and equal to any of the crops before the war, but, according to the estimate of one of the most intelligent planters on the island, the gale has reduced the crop by one-third.

There is a natural disposition in the South to take a gloomy view of the crop prospect; because the last two months have nipped so many budding hopes, and because the Northern operators are so universally sanguine. But, making every allowance for a tendency to look on the dark side, we are confident that, under the most favorable circumstances, the cotton crop of this State will be one-third less than that of last year. And we doubt that any other Southern State will do much better.

Bayonets at the Polls!

The Radical press throughout the land protest that there is no danger to the citizen in posting United States troops at every polling precinct in the Union. They treat the arguments of Democratic statesmen and journalists as "twaddle and unbecome," and are positive that Blue Coats and Bayonets are rather favorable than otherwise to an untrammelled exercise of the right of the suffrage. Against the experience of generations, the Radical writers and declaimers cite an isolated fact. Because the United States soldiers who were stationed at the polls in Charleston on August 2 did secure a free election to all classes, the Radicals are satisfied that bayonets will never be used for securing a party triumph.

The civil authorities of Charleston are Radicals of the strictest and most unscrupulous sect. Mayor Pillsbury was a candidate for re-election. Sheriff Mackey regarded a defeat in Charleston as likely to endanger Radical supremacy in the State. The Chief of Police, a Radical for the nonce, knew that the election of the Radical ticket could save him from official decapitation, or something worse. It could not be expected, therefore, that these worthies would interfere on behalf of the free American citizens whom their negro allies abused and beat. Any demonstration on the part of the whites would have been deemed here, and in Washington, a "new rebellion." The only course was to call upon the Federal soldiers, and Mayor Pillsbury, driven into a corner, gave to this measure his assent. Mark this! The civil authorities were not unable to protect the peaceable citizen. They were only unwilling. The United States troops did what the civil authorities, for their own selfish purposes, abstained from doing. It was the policy of the Radical officials to pump oil on the flames. The soldiers, impartial and inflexible, were the conservators of peace.

As we have said, the United States soldiers were stationed at the polls in Charleston to prevent a political party from carrying an election by brute force. They insured fair play to every citizen. But what the Radicals aim at, in their Force Bill and Bayonet bills, is the overawing of Conservative voters by a display of armed men, who are supposed to be ready to execute any order, however iniquitous. This is the whole difference between that guarding of the polls in this city which the Conservatives applaud, and that eternal camping around the polls, for party reasons, which every lover of constitutional freedom constantly and justly condemns. And we confess that we cannot see why the broadest knowledge of these simple facts should, as the opposition maintain, spoil a barrelful of Democratic speeches, or blunt the edge of their logic. That it should be necessary to call in a military force to protect a community, from out-rages which the Radical officials permitted, if they did not plan, is but one more potent argument against the continuance of that infamous party rule which, in the blasphemed name of Freedom and Civilization, would impoverish and make desolate the fairest States of the South.

"Syndicates."

Wall street rejoices in a new nomenclature. Pools and cliques and rings are to be known no more, and combinations and communions are things of the past. "Syndicates" have sprung from their ashes, and now we have the Erie Syndicate, the Reading Syndicate, the Panama, Western Union, Pacific Mail, &c., Syndicates. There is something ponderous and respectable about a Syndicate. The very sound of the name repudiates any suspicion of aught but the most high-toned integrity. Can a "knee-deep" ever be a Syndicate? Can a "squeeze" of the "shorts" ever form part of the dignified operations of a Syndicate? Unless words have lost their meaning, such a name is a guarantee against anything of the kind.

Sold by all Druggists and Wholesale by GOODRICH, WINEMAN & CO., Charleston, S. C. (aug18-stmth)

MEDICAL MISTAKES.—IT TOOK the faculty about a thousand years to discover that the best way to cure disease was not to render the patient too weak to contend with it. With the system of medical practice has been changed for the better. In diseases or complaints caused by excessive heat, for instance, the doctors no longer recommend the reduction of the invalid's strength by prostrating medicines. The vast success which has attended the use of HUSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS as a remedy for debility has given them the most prejudiced members of the old school an insight into the only true and rational theory of cure. Cantharides, calomel, and overpowering doses of opium are now among the obsolete nostrums of another age. The lancet, once as much the legitimate weapon of the physician as the sword is of the soldier, is seldom drawn from its case. The principle of life is no longer drained from the victims by the quart, and water-gruel for the strengthless invalid has ceased to be considered an appropriate diet. Vigor is the motto of the rational members of the profession, and they understand at last the value of a sterling vegetable tonic. So also with the people at large; and without consulting medical men at all, they have adopted the Bitters as a household remedy, thereby economizing both cash and health.

Note the fact that HUSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is sold in bottles only—never in bulk—and that the abortions springing up in various parts of the country, and sometimes offered as substitutes for the great national specific, are all utterly worthless. (aug1-stmthbuc)
